

<http://www.howloweenqueen.com/>

Bottles & Jars For Witches and Voodoo

Obtained from

In 2003, I made some bottles and jars to sit in my kitchen and around the house for the annual Halloween party. They were very crude and simple and never stood out or got any attention. In 2004, they didn't even get taken out of the storage box. For 2005, I decided to revamp the bottles, giving them better labels and grouped them in the kitchen together. I basically made these labels the same way that I made the labels for the treat bags, which are located here:

<http://www.howloweenqueen.com/papertreatbags.htm>

In 2006, I simply added more bottles and jars for the "Year of the Witch". 2007 came, and I decided I wanted all of the labels to match, so I removed all the old ones and replaced them with new ones, incorporating some of DeadSpider's techniques.

I also wanted some neat bottles for my witch doctor scene in 2006, so I sent my son out to raid people's recycle bins for bottles and jars. We spray painted a bunch of them black. I had a ton of those skull whistles, so I used some MinWax stain on them to give them an aged look. I hot glue them into the tops of the bottles. Then I used some twine and wrapped it around the bottles in different places and used hot glue to hold it all in place. They looked kinda neat.

I've been asked many times if I would share my templates for the labels, but I never saved the newer ones after I printed them out. I do, however, still have the old ones from 2005. For anyone wanting to make some simple labels, I am putting all of my old labels on this page for downloading. The labels will not be green (that's just the background color I used for the table); they are all gifs, so they will be whatever color paper you use them on. Just right click and save as.

I threw together the list of the actual stuff I put inside the 2005 version bottles and jars as well, for ideas on what to use for the ingredients:

- Dead Man's Fat— Crisco shortening
- Dried Hell Fire— dried chili peppers
- Dried Swamp Bottom-Dwellers— dried shrimp
- Essence of Death- water and blue laundry detergent mix
- Eye of Goblin— green pimento-stuffed olives
- Eye of Newt — whole black peppercorns
- Ghost Tears — tonic water (or water with blue laundry detergent)
- Instant Love Potion— powdered chocolate milk mix or cocoa powder
- Liver of Salamander— Turmeric (the one sold as pellets)

- Muddy Swamp Water— water with dirt and stuff in it
- Pasteurized Werewolf Milk— any white liquid
- Pickled Liars' Tongues— fake rubber tongues in a yellowish liquid
- Pirates Eyes— fake eyeballs
- Pixie Dust— cinnamon sugar or colored granulated sugar
- Poison Ivy— fake ivy vine pieces
- Scales of a baby brown Gwardar Snake — Fennel seed
- Spawn of Jack O'Lantern — green pumpkin seeds
- Squid Ink— water and lots of blue food coloring
- Toasted Bat Wings— Bat wings cut off fake rubber or plastic bats
- Vampyre Blood— corn syrup and red food coloring
- Warlock's beard— Chinese bean Thread noodles

Obtained from

Dead Man's
Fat

Pitied Swamps
Bottom-Pwellers

Eye of Goblin

Ghost Tears

Liver of Salamander

PASTEURIZED
WEREWOLF
MILK

PIRATES' EYES

Poison
Ivy

Spawn of
Jack O' Lantern

Toasted
Bat Wings

Dried
Hell FIRE

Warlock's Beard