BUCKY, THE WONDER SKELETON

What Halloween graveyard would be complete without the Grim Reaper himself menacing your trick or treaters?

Both our Grim Reaper and the Hangman Skeleton were made using Bucky Skeletons. Unlike the paper or cheap plastic skeletons you can buy this time of the year, Bucky is an economical life-size articulated adult size plastic skeleton. The arms and legs are removable. Skull includes movable jaw, cut calvarium, suture lines, and 3 removable lower teeth. Size: 5' 6" tall.

So how is it that you can get one of these skeletons that normally cost hundreds of dollars for around $129.00? These skeletons are seconds. During the manufacturing process some skeletons and parts are blemished, discolored, irregular or slightly damaged, all to the Halloween enthusiasts benefit!

- Hang one from a hangman's noose or in a crows cage from a tree in your yard.
- Build a Grim Reaper prop to stand in your graveyard beckoning visitors to enter.
- Lay one in a coffin as a prop in your haunted garage or at your Halloween party.
- Sit one in a chair with a bowl of candy in his lap to greet your trick or treaters.
- Dress your skeletons up in Halloween costumes.
- Partially bury one in your graveyard as though he's climbing out of the grave.
- Let your imagination run wild...

BUCKY, THE WONDER SKELETON

The sight of a skeleton hanging from your favorite tree or from a beam on Halloween (or if you're like us all year long) is a very creepy sight indeed. But, tying an authentic Hangman's noose is one of those elusive techniques that seems to be forgotten shortly after learning how it's done. After all, how often do most people tie a Hangman's noose?

The instructions for tying the Hangman's Knot are pictured on the right. The hangman's noose requires a lot more rope than you might think.

We prefer to use 1/2" or 5/8" rope, that is at least 16 feet long. This will give you a noose rope about six feet long. Thick, hemp type rope can usually be bought at your local hardware store by the foot.

Danger: This noose is the real thing! Never put this noose over a living persons head and never play hangman. Do not leave where children can access it. Don't take any risk that could result in a deadly accident. If you are not a responsible adult, do not make or use a hangman's noose! If you're not sure if you are a responsible adult, do not make or use a hangman's noose! We except no responsibility for the irresponsible use or misuse of this prop by irresponsible persons.

The are so many spooky things you can do with these skeletons, and at under $130.00, Bucky is a great addition to your Halloween decor.
